

I'm back in the hunt again.

Since my knee replacement surgery, I'm back in the field again, hunting quail.

Jim Harmon, retired owner and engineer at Rainbow Signs, Greenwood, SC

Jim Harmon has a long list of accolades and accomplishments, but after years of knee pain, this decorated World War II veteran and successful business owner found himself barely able to walk, much less enjoy his favorite hobby—quail hunting. Having earned three purple hearts and a bronze star for his military service, and having built his company, Rainbow Signs, into one of the Southeast's major sign suppliers, he was no stranger to pain, sacrifice and struggle.

But knee pain just about brought his active life to a halt. It was time to stop the pain. He chose to have his knee replacement surgery at Self Regional, and now he's back in the field again, quail hunting... and without the pain.
